

You can see that I have clearly implemented the current user in my template, but when I click on the tab, it is redirected to a new page. I am wondering how can I disable that behavior. A: `$routerLink="/my_link"` will redirect the user to the root. If you need to redirect to a specific route, try to use the resolve callback function of `$router`. This code: `function(route) { if( route.name === 'albumList' ) { // do something } else { // redirect to the given route $router.push(route); } }` can be rewritten like this: `$routeProvider .when('/my_route', { resolve: { myResolve: function() { return myResolve; } } }) .otherwise({ redirectTo: '/my_route' });` If you want to redirect to a specific route, you can pass a function that will return the redirect to another route. `redirectTo: function() { return '';` And finally, if you want to just redirect the user to a new page, you can use the `$location` service: `$location.path("");` Q: Dj
