I am using a Udacity course to learn about the idea of inheritance. I have been following it through the video lectures. The problem is that I am having trouble implementing a basic concept in Python. I am having trouble understanding the concept of inheritance. I think I am a little confused with the concept of inheritance. I have the following code: class player(object): #When I run the program I get the error "ValueError: Statement is not in context" def __init__(self, name): self.name = name print "This is player %s" % (name) class challenger(player): #I am only posting the relevant code from this module #It is to make it easier to follow along with the video lecture def make_move(self, board): #I need to use the functions to deal with the board for the method make_move challenger1 = challenger('mark') print challenger1.make_move(Board('4b 2b 4c 3d')).name This is the error that I am getting: ValueError: Statement is not in context I am not sure why this is happening. Also how do I inherit from another class? A: As you seem to be using Python 3.5, it seems like you should be using print instead of print: def __init__(self, name): self.name = name print("This is player {}".format(name)) Tag: django Get Django 2.0.4 on Mac OS X or
