The Story of the World The Story of the World is a 1961 American omnibus science fiction film written and directed by Martin Scorsese. The film is composed of three segments—The World of Creation (featuring a prologue), The World of Living Things (featuring an epilogue), and The World of Human Relations (featuring an epilogue)—all shot over the course of just three days in November 1960. The film was narrated by Paul Winchell and Robert Stack. The film was nominated for the 1961 Golden Globe Awards for Best Picture and Best Actor - Motion Picture Drama for its lead actor, Paul Newman. Plot Three segments of the film deal with the aspects of the world, in succession. The prologue takes place in the distant past. A couple of unnamed astronomers peer at the "solar system". They speculate about the origin of the earth. 2d92ce491b
