THE STATE. 60651. Court of Appeals of Georgia. Submitted September 12, 1980. Decided December 2, 1980. Robert L. Tilley, pro se. Darrell E. Wilson, District Attorney, for appellee. DEEN, Chief Judge. The appellant is presently serving a term of imprisonment following a conviction for escape (Code Ann. § 26-2503). On the same date that he was convicted, appellant was placed in the Stewart County jail pending execution of the sentence; he was later transferred to the Clayton County jail. Following the transfer, it was learned that he had not received the sentence, and he was given a hearing before the trial judge, who imposed the sentence. When the appellant was discharged from the Stewart County jail, he was sent to the Gwinnett County jail. In Gwinnett County he was again served with the sentence, but he was transferred to the Alabama prison. In Alabama, he was later sent to the federal prison. He brought habeas corpus proceedings in the federal court, alleging that he was still serving the sentence; the federal court entered an order to the State Department of Corrections to hold him in the federal prison pending determination of his appeal. On July 31, 1980, the appellant filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the Superior Court of Gwinnett County, alleging the facts set forth above. The superior court denied the petition without a hearing. Appellant then filed his appeal in this court. We affirm the superior court's judgment. The appellant contends that the superior court erred in denying his petition for writ of habeas corpus because the sentences were *848 not yet complete, and he was held as a detainer. As noted above, he was in Gwinnett County awaiting resolution of the federal appeal. He contends that at the time of this appeal he is in prison in Alabama serving time on the escape sentence; that at the time the federal court order was issued, he had been sentenced to serve a prison term of "not less than five (5) years nor more than eight (8) years," and that the order was therefore void 2d92ce491b
