The boats are named after the, the first battleship of the Royal Indian Navy. The first twenty-one M.A.S.D. (Viraat class) ships have been inducted into the Indian Navy's fleet and a new class of ten vessels is under construction. The M.A.S.D. (Viraat class) is armed with modern dual-purpose anti-air and anti-ship missiles and has the capability of engaging multiple aircraft and surface vessels. The Viraat class underwent a major refit in 2011-2012 and the class M.A.S.D. (Viraat class) are being upgraded with the new class of destroyers M.A.S.D. (Dhanush class) already in service. Category:India–Soviet Union relations Grain-boundary-facilitated structural transformation in $\text{BaFe}_2(\text{AsO}_4)_2$. At low temperature, the magnetically ordered $\text{BaFe}_2(\text{AsO}_4)_2$ undergoes a sharp structural change from tetragonal to orthorhombic. Using in situ X-ray diffraction, we show that this structural transformation is closely coupled to the formation of a coherently strained interface between orthorhombic phase and tetragonal phase. The strain is thought to be the result of lattice mismatch between orthorhombic phase and tetragonal phase. Using X-ray reflectivity and synchrotron X-ray diffraction, we demonstrate that coherently strained interface is the necessary condition for the structural transformation to occur. In addition, we show that the formation of coherently strained interface modifies the elastic properties of the film, increasing the bulk transverse shear modulus by a factor of 10. r o b f i c k n g l u a n
