I've been so busy with work that I haven't been posting for a few weeks. I think the message that I wanted to get across was about customer service and the lack of it that we've been seeing lately with most cell phone providers. Basically what has happened is that companies are able to cut costs wherever possible by placing customers on the high-rated networks that are profitable and charging them for the privilege. Customers are trained not to complain about it, because they figure if they make enough of a nuisance of themselves, they'll be moved. But, if enough people complain, the provider is forced to change. It's a vicious cycle that companies exploit.1.
