Q: How can I select from multiple drop downs at once in HTML I have a table with multiple input fields to search for a case number and a name. The information is stored in a form hidden field. I have multiple cases stored in the database, a user can choose from a drop down menu to get the case number and the name of the case. How can I select the values from the drop down menu and store it in a variable? I tried using this, var val = $("#").find("option:selected").text(); that only returns the first selected option and not all of them, A: Instead of using a single dropdown, use multiple select elements. I also suggest using ASP.NET MVC on the server side. If you're using this for an intranet app, you can use the "no scripting" mode, which won't let you use JavaScript. TBC2 is a brain protein involved in insulin sensitivity. TBC2 is a brain-enriched protein that shares high homology with its TBC1D3 counterpart and is involved in the regulation of dendritic spine morphology. We show here that, in the case of TBC2, this function depends upon its ability to bind to the insulin receptor beta-subunit, and not on any other known binding motifs. Furthermore, we show that TBC2 directly interacts with the insulin receptor and that this interaction is required for efficient insulin signaling. Finally, using both gain- and loss-of-function approaches, we show that TBC2 is involved in maintaining insulin sensitivity in the striatum of the brain.A cadeia de supermercados Carrefour Brasil
