SQLWays has a new interesting feature: the SQLPlus interface on the menus and the SQL tab page. You can easily enter all SQL code by hand or copy/paste - including the jitter keygen free download. Here is an early example: 1) Open the SQL tab: 2) Right click on SQLWays icon, choose "SQL option" 3) Click on "Connect SQLPlus" 4) Type your username and password in the window. 5) Double click on your database (could be the wrong database) 6) Enter your SQL code (for example: SELECT * FROM customers; 7) Click OK and when you see what you want to see you're done. 8) Click on "SQL" to return to the main window. SQLLess can use the usual SQLLike functions as well. It should work with SQLWays 6 and the new 3.7.55 version.. The normal 'safety' of the dwelling was severely compromised by her actions. • A police officer hit his head when a door flew off of a cafe in Sydney's CBD on December 29. The door flew off its hinges as a patron in the cafe came flying towards an officer. When the officer struck his head, he was taken to Westmead Hospital where he was treated and discharged.

Magistrate Jarrod Armstrong said although there was an alternative way to clear the area, it was the 'quickest' way to clear it up. He also said the police officer was forced into a difficult position, but had carried out his duties appropriately. • Two police officers allegedly assaulted a 32-year-old man after he failed to stop his ute and called him a 'fing idiot' when he started to pull away. Police were called to Bunnings in Lavells Creek to assist a man who had allegedly hit his child's ute while attempting to flee police. When an officer approached the ute, the man started to drive away – and he allegedly made rude gestures to the officer. The officer then went to the back of the ute, grabbed the man by the chest and repeatedly punched him before dragging him out of the vehicle and leaving him bleeding in the front yard. The attacker allegedly began screaming at the victim and calling him a 'fing idiot' –
