Vanaparib (Buparlisib) in an Era of PARP Inhibition Chemotherapy in Ovarian Cancer. The PARP-inhibiting anticancer activity of olaparib in ovarian cancer is associated with the development of adverse events. The phase 3 trial Evaluating Safety and Efficacy of Dose Escalation of Olaparib in Subjects with BRCA 1/2 Mutation (ENGOT-OV16) evaluated olaparib in combination with chemotherapy, and olaparib plus bevacizumab has been approved in combination with chemotherapy for relapsed ovarian cancer. We assessed the activity of olaparib in newly diagnosed ovarian cancer treated with an induction regimen of paclitaxel and carboplatin (PC) and bevacizumab. In this prospective, single-arm phase 2 trial, subjects with International Federation of Gynecology and Obstetrics stage IIB to IV ovarian cancer, BRAF wild-type, and a minimum of a partial response after PC and bevacizumab received olaparib (200 mg twice daily, continuously). The primary end point was objective response rate (ORR) based on two or more assessable solid disease sites at a modified intent-to-treat population. There were 48 assessable subjects with ovarian cancer, with 30 (63.8%) women having stage IIB, 4 (8.3%) stage III, and 14 (29.2%) stage IV disease. The median time from diagnosis to olaparib initiation was 7.1 months (range, 0.9-45.2 months). The ORR was 56% (95% confidence interval [CI], 41%-69%) based on two or more assessable sites and was similar to that of a previous phase 1 trial that used a lower dose and a longer follow-up. The median response duration was 16.3 months, and the median progression-free survival was not reached. In a subset of subjects who had measurable disease by RECIST 1.1 at baseline, the ORR was 80% (95% CI, 65%-92%). Serious adverse events occurred in 15 (31.3%) of 48 subjects, and all resolved. The most common grade 3-4 adverse events were fatigue (9.4%), headache (6.3%), and nausea (3.1%). Olaparib 400 mg twice daily orally is active in subjects with newly diagnosed advanced, platinum-sensitive ovarian

Q: How to get window collection from a WindowThread in QML I'm developing a multi-window application using Qt 5.2 and I need to access a native C++ class from an object in a different "window" (actually it's the mainwindow). The class is creating a new window and I have to get a reference to it but I'm unable to find a way to do it. I'm using the following code in an object to get the window: Window::Window(QWidget parent) : QWidget(parent) { QSettings settings; this->setWindowFlags(Qt::Window); this->setWindowTitle("Window1"); this->setAttribute(Qt::WA_DeleteOnClose); QNativeInterface native_interface = new QNativeInterface(); native_interface->registerObject("mainwindow", this); this->show(); } Window window = qobject_cast(QObject::sender()); if(window!= NULL) { QSettings settings; this->setWindowTitle(settings.value("mainwindow").toString()); QMessageBox::information(this, "WindowTitle!", "Window title: " + this->windowTitle()); } This works OK and the window is created, but now I need to get a reference to it from a different thread in which I need to use the window. The thread is created as follows: void Settings::testThread() { QSettings settings; QObject object = NULL; mainwindow_ptr = new MainWindow(); thread = new QThread(this); mainwindow_ptr->moveToThread(thread); object = mainwindow_ptr; connect(mainwindow_ptr, SIGNAL(loadSavedSettings()), this, SLOT(savedSettingsLoaded())); mainwindow_ptr->show(); thread->start(); } void Settings::savedSettingsLoaded() { window_ptr = mainwindow_ptr; } This sets the reference to the
