I'm working with a legacy application that is written in c#, where there is a method that has two parameter, an string and an int. the string parameter is a date with the format of dd/MM/yyyy or HH:MM:SS where the hours are positive ints. the int parameter is an number of hours and has to be converted from string to int. Can anyone help me out to resolve this problem. UPDATE: I managed to do this but it takes more than 1 second to execute if someone need more detail you can see the code here: public static long ConvertStringToTimeValue(string s) { DateTime dt = DateTime.ParseExact(s, "yyyy-MM-dd HH:mm:ss", CultureInfo.InvariantCulture); long timeValue = dt.Ticks / 10000000L; return timeValue; }
